

At left is a section of the Battle in the Mind Fields poster, with a focus on Franz Brentano's connections. It was used as the content of this week's d3.js prototypes, with all people and connections included minus Watson at right, to test the highway layout idea.

This section is quite busy with many overlapping lines, making for a good test case. See the last page for ongoing work that extends this work to the entire diagram.

